TRANSITIONS TO COMMUNITY LIVING

Transitions to Community Living gives more than 3,000 North Carolina residents a chance to move into apartments, if they wish.

Transitions to Community Living means long-term housing and fewer hospital stays.

The Sandhills Center Tailored Plan helps people in an 11-county region of central North Carolina. We make sure that services are in place for self-supported living.

SERVICES PROVIDED:

- Transition planning
- Housing access with rental and transition support
- Assertive Community Treatment Team (ACTT) services
- Supported Employment services
- Crisis resources

FOR PEOPLE WITH SERIOUS MENTAL ILLNESS, TCLI MEANS:

- People are safe during and after the move with a personal wellness and crisis plan.
- Services are in the most flexible setting that is right for each person.
- Housing that does not limit a person's social activities with the people of their choice.
- Housing that helps people to connect with others.
- Your choice is valued and supported.
- Recovery is the main focus. We want people to succeed.
